PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION:

This Gothic Revival house consists of a 3-bay wide core with rear addition and a 1-story barn in the rear of the property. The core is a 2-story, stucco-clad building with an end-gabled, asbestos shingled (diamond shape) roof. The roof is punctuated on the main facade with a small cross gable. The gable is adorned with a decorative bargeboard, in Gothic Revival fashion. Stucco-covered, flush chimneys are located on both ends of the house, with a third chimney located on the north end. Fenestration consists of pedimented topped windows with surrounding panes (in Queen Ann style) on the first floor windows. Bracketed gabled hoods, with scalloped wood shingles, are located over the first floor windows (complimenting the pedimented tops of the windows below) and the second floor windows under the gabled ends. The Queen Ann style windows (large plate glass surrounded by smaller panes) are also located on the second floor. A single Palladium window, minus the flanking units, is located under the center gable. It is capped with curved hood mold with a decorative wood keystone in the center of the arch. Access to the core is through a centered door, with transom. Markings between the first and second floor window openings indicate the presence of a pent or porch roof. The core measures 30' x 15'.

A two story, stucco-clad addition is attached to the rear of the core. It features a shed-roofed porch on the southwest corner. Overall, the house measures 30' x 40'.

Associated Building: (Barn/Garage [no photo]) To the rear of the house is a 1.5 story, frame barn. It would be considered contributing if within a historic district.

Classification: This property is impressive yet probably would not be eligible individually for the National Register and thus is Class II.
